Untidy Towns Mar 18 2020 Untidy Towns is a highly anticipated coming-of-age novel from Kate O'Donnell, an exciting new voice in Australian YA. Seventeen-year-old Adelaide is sick of being expected to succeed on other people's terms. She knows she just has to stick it out at school for one more year and then she'll be free. Instead, she runs away from her fancy boarding school back to her sleepy hometown to read and dream. But there are no free rides. When Addie's grandad gets her a job at the local historical society, she soon finds out that it's dusty and dull, just like her new life. Things change when she starts hanging out with Jarrod, a boy who seems full of possibilities. But it turns out he's as stuck as she is. And Addie realises that when you want something in life, you've actually got to do something about it. A heartfelt tale about love, friendship and finding your own way.

Een klasse apart Aug 23 2020 Joanne Harris heeft een indrukwekkend oeuvre op haar naam staan van romans, thrillers, YA-titels. 'Een klasse apart' is na 'Schaakmat' en 'Blauwe ogen', haar derde boek dat zich afspeelt in het plaatsje Malbry. In 'Een klasse apart' heeft het jongensgynasium St. Oswald een roerig jaar achter de rug: een moord, het vertrek van het schoolhoofd, een rampzalig eindexamenresultaat... Roy Straitley, leraar klassieke talen, had eigenlijk met pensioen zullen gaan maar hij voelt dat hij zijn school nu niet in de steek kan laten. De komst van een nieuw schoolhoofd zal hopelijk rust brengen. Maar het nieuwe hoofd blijkt een oud-leerling te zijn die zelf het middelpunt was van het schandaal dat de school eerder aan de rand van de afgrond bracht. Straitley wordt verscheurd tussen zijn loyaliteit jegens St. Oswald enerzijds en de angst dat hij zelf de school te gronde zal richten anderzijds. Kan hij zowel zijn geliefde school als zichzelf trouw blijven? 'Harris onthult stukje bij beetje de waarheid, maar je weet als lezer pas écht hoe alle stukjes in elkaar passen als je bij het verrassende slot aankomt. Sterk geschreven, boeiend en aangrijpend.' The Times 'Een briljant plot. Met haar kenmerkende zwarte humor zet Joanne Harris de lezer continu op het verkeerde been. Het einde is zowel buitenissig als goed gevonden.' Observer

Strange Relations Dec 19 2022 A summer in paradise. That's all Marne wants. That's all she can think of when she asks her parents permission to spend the summer in Hawaii with Aunt Carole and her family. But Marne quickly realizes her visit isn't going to be just about learning to surf and morning runs along the beach, despite the cute surfer boy she keeps bumping into. For one thing, Aunt Carole isn't even Aunt Carole anymore—she's Aunt Chaya, married to a Chasidic rabbi and deeply rooted in her religious community. Nothing could be more foreign to Marne, and fitting into this new culture—and house full of kids—is a challenge. But as she settles into her newfound family's daily routine, she begins to think about spirituality, identity, and finding a place in the world in a way she never has before. This rich novel is a window into a different life and gets to the very heart of faith, identity, and family ties.

Secret Scribbled Notebooks Feb 09 2022 'My name is Kate O'Farrell and I am seventeen years old. I am in my last year of school, and when that is over I will be leaving this place for good - going to a real city, where I will begin my new life. I have long red hair and pale skin. I like staying up very late at night. It is my ambition to see the sun rise, but sadly I am always asleep by then. I love eating and reading, preferably at the same time. I am very tall, and too thin. I have never been in love.' Kate has three notebooks, the Red, Yellow and Blue Notebooks, in which she records her life. Through reading and writing, living and learning to love, she discovers things about herself that she never expected.

Mahalia Jul 14 2022 Matt had loved Emmy, with her freckled, luminous, magical body; he had loved the way she hadn't given a damn for anything, the way she had climbed onto the roof of the church tower and kissed and kissed him. The way she'd fallen into the river just to know what it felt like. He had loved the way she had said to her parents, 'We'll just love it, okay?' He remembered how they had believed that loving Mahalia would be enough.

Bush, City, Cyberspace Jan 08 2022 Aimed at academic, professional and general readers, Bush, city, cyberspace provides a snapshot of the state of Australian children's and adolescent literature in the early twenty-first century, and an insight into its history. In doing so, it promotes a sense of where Australian literature for young people may be going and captures a literary and critical mood with which readers in Australia and beyond will identify. The title of the work is intended to capture the fact that the field has changed dramatically in the century and a half that 'Australian children's literature' has existed, from the bush myths and heroism that inform the past and the present, through the recognition that the vast majority of authors and readers live in cities, to the third wave of 'cyberliterature' that incorporates multimedia, hypertext, weblinks and e-books - none of which lessens the enduring enthusiasm of practitioners and readers for books. Bush, city, cyberspace is not meant to be an encyclopedic volume. Rather, well-known, recent and/or award-winning works have been emphasised, with the addition of others where these help to illuminate particular points. The book is similar in coverage and approach to Australian Children's Literature: An Exploration of Genre and Theme, written by the same three authors and published by the Centre for Information Studies in 1995. In the intervening period, much has changed in the field, notable examples including the blurring of the dividing line between 'quality' and 'popular' literature; the blending of genres; the rise of a truly indigenous literature; the demise, to a significant extent, of 'Outbackery' in fiction; the acceptance of multiculturalism as the norm; and the advent of the literature of cyberspace, with new methods, and the sheer speed, of communication between writer and reader. All these trends, and others, are reflected in this work.

My Candlelight Novel Aug 15 2022 I am a reading girl, with a pale face, and glasses. People who become enthralled by the world of books, as I am, are often thought to have dull lives, but I feel that my own life is made of the stuff of myth. Or anyway, I intend to make it so. So this is my story. It will be about birth & death and love & sex. I will make it something after my own heart, tender and dark, a little candlelight novel, started this late summer night. Sophie is a 21-year-old single mother and this beautifully written novel explores her relationships in all their surprising and sensuous complexiti.
