This horizon expanding, curiosity-fuelling issue of Architectural Design brings together new work from the farthest flung edges of the world, much of which has never been published before. The quality of architectural design needs to know no geographical, economic or political boundaries. So why is the majority of the architecture brought to the world's attention concentrated in USA and the wealthier nations of Europe? Off the Radar presents work from countries as diverse as Iceland, Portugal, Chile, India and Guinea and features contributors who are successfully designing and building at the very edges of the world. Successful "off the radar" contributors bring a refreshing change to the discussion on architectural design today. Presents new work set in unfamiliar surroundings, much of which has not been widely published before. It features interviews with well-known architects, including John Patkau from Vancouver and German del Sol from Santiago, and contributions from John Tuomey from Dublin and Greg Dykkers of Snohetta in Oslo. A deglamorizing account of what the ballet world is really like. University-based research is increasingly leading to business opportunities beyond academia. Notable examples include Hewlett Packard from Stanford University and Digital Equipment Corp. from MIT. This volume explores this emerging phenomenon in order to offer an efficient solution to the problem of launching academic ventures. The 14 contributions to University Spin-off Companies provide an overview of the opportunities in and obstacles to creating spin-off ventures and consider case studies from several universities. The contributors believe that greater emphasis on spin-off ventures will allow the nation's universities to play a vital role in increasing industrial competitiveness, creating wealth for the community, providing greater returns on our investment in higher education and enhancing the traditional knowledge-generating role of the university sector. "In a mix of memoir and reportage, Krasny takes readers inside his world - telling of his coming of age during the heady 1960s and vividly describing his journey from a life as a student of literature to that of a struggling novelist, an educator, and - somewhat accidentally - a radio host. Krasny recounts the polarizing transformation of talk radio, comparing his early days at KGO commercial radio to his current role at NPR, where he keeps his San Francisco-based show, Forum, animated and politically balanced."--BOOK JACKET. "Ronald Hopper has had a long life. A diverse life. An unexpected life. Looking back across eight decades he seeks out patterns and clues, causes and effects to help explain how he got from there to here...intact and relatively unscathed!" "En route he discovers a young boy - familiar, yet distant - orphaned at the age of eight and parcelled off from his beloved London home to an unknown fate in the north of England. Here, in what should be the safety and comfort of a new familial home, he encounters a cold detachment, which soon grows into cruelty and physical abuse." "After years of torment at the hands of his uncle, the teenage boy finally escapes to pursue his own destiny, running away to sea as a 15-year-old boy seaman in the Merchant Navy, followed by a five-year stint in the Royal Marines during World War Two." "Perfectly adept at changing trajectory on the most speculative of whims, his twilight years take a sudden about turn as United Nations field service beckons, taking him from Thailand to Nepal, from Vietnam to Mauritius over a 17-year period." "Filled with anecdote and incident, philosophical reflection and humorous reverie, this strikingly unique autobiography is one man's chronicle of a century of change."--BOOK JACKET.

Verdediging van de hoogleraar tegen de lasteringen in de 'Vruchte-losen Biddach' With the publication of his Past Continuous in 1983, Yaakov Shabtai assumed a place of eminence in the canon of modern Jewish literature. Alan Lelchuk, in the New York Times, acclaimed its portrait of contemporary Israeli society as 'the most prodigious (and probably most realistic) in Hebrew fiction.' In Uncle Peretz Takes Off, the first collection of Shabtai's short fiction in English, a magnificent gallery of comic and idiosyncratic characters gives Tel Aviv of the 1940s an unpredictable frontier quality. Written with biting irony and a vivid, atmospheric style, the author portrays a society of individualists and schemers in search of redemption: Uncle Shmuel tries to make his fortune as a poulterer; Uncle Pinke, a born swindler, ends his days as a refugee in Monaco fleeing his creditors; Albert Weiss-Finek dreams of a travelling circus in Palestine, while promising to marry three different women; the uncontrollably ribald Tamara Bell, who poses naked for artists, causes adolescent boys in the neighbourhood small, excruciating flickers of desire. energy, and tragedy of the early years of the Zionist enterprise.
