In a day when the fourth leading cause of death in America is due to adverse effects of properly prescribed drugs (Journal of American Medical Association - July 2000), many are asking, "Are there not safer alternatives?" Yes there are!! Allow me to introduce to you one extraordinary yet simple natural remedy - Activated medicinal charcoal. Charcoal, What is it? We drink water filtered by it; breath are scrubbed with it; eat food purified through it; wear clothes made with it; preserve things in it; go to war with it; enjoy hundreds of dishes cooked by it; we move mountains with it; we make the night sky sparkle with it; grow our food and flowers in it; we take it with us to the bottom of the deepest oceans and out into space; swim in water washed with it; draw our inspirations with it; record man's history dipped in it: and then we call upon it to clean up many of our environmental mistakes. Not least and not last, medicinal charcoal plays an increasingly significant role in maintaining, restoring and enhancing man's level of health. No wonder we naturally warm up to it. "I heartily recommend CharcoalRemedies.com The Complete Handbook of Medicinal Charcoal and It's Applications by author John Dinsley. As a physician, as a mother and grandmother, as a public health educator for the past 41 years, I have come to fully trust the efficacy and safety of charcoal as simple yet powerful home remedy. This book serves not only as a reference book of medicinal charcoal facts, but also brings together a hundred and fifty different charcoal experiences of individuals from around the world. People need this book. EVERY FAMILY, every healthcare worker, every traveler abroad, every health conscious individual needs a copy in their home library." --Agatha Thrast, MD (Co-founder Uchee Pines Institute. Medical Examiner for the State of Georgia) After finishing these pages you will have a complete application which will work for either console or desktop platform. You will be utilizing three languages - C#, VB.Net and Java for creating this application. Each chapter covers a single language and either the desktop or console application coded in that language (Java does not natively allow a console application, so it includes only Desktop). For console program automation purposes, we will be using an Excel sheet and VBA coding. Using the desktop application allows for more flexibility in web page processing, with entry fields for beginning and ending text along with DIVs and other processing options. Enjoy this learning experience. This list includes some of the types/commands and the languages that use them: `WebResponse`, `WebRequest`, `HttpWebRequest`, `StreamReader (C#/VB)` `GetResponse`, `Regex.Replace`, `String.Replace`, `IndexOf (C#/VB)` `Substring`, `ReadLine`, `Trim`, `WriteLine (C#/VB)` `EndsWith`, `AddRange`, `ReadToEnd`, `Count (C#/VB)` `GetCommandLineArgs`, `GetResponseStream (VB)` `getText`, `endsWith`, `split`, `length`, `openConnection (Java)` `toString`, `BufferedReader`, `getSelectedIndex`, `replaceAll (Java)` `isEmpty`, `substring`, `indexOf`, `readLine`, `PrintWriter`, `write (Java)` `ActiveCell`, `Value`, `ChDir`, `Shell`, `Activate (VBA)` Why would you want to work with the same program in multiple languages? A simple answer to this is "versatility." You may come across a need for Java where a .Net-based language just won't work. A perfect example of this is Windows versus Linux web hosting. If you have designed a .Net program and placed it on your site based on Windows, it will work beautifully. If you then change the hosting plan to Linux, the .Net program will not work without some tweaking or an interpreter. If that were written in Java, however, it would have moved over fine. Why would you want a web site text extraction program? Well, if you had a need to capture the main text from a few web pages, this would be too much trouble. If you are migrating a web site designed in ASP.NET into another format, maybe a CMS, this approach can be quite useful. If you have 1,000 pages in the site and all are similarly structured, it may take a week for a single person to manually copy and paste the body text from these pages. Using the automated approach, with a pause between each page for accuracy purposes, approximately 700 pages per hour can be processed. That equates to a tremendous labor savings.
